

Here are the Pendorings Awards 2020 finalists

After a round of judging 277 entries online over two days by a diverse awards jury, The Pendorings has announced its finalists for 2020...

One of the three Jury Presidents this year, Mpume Ngobese said, “A global pandemic has certainly not affected creativity, and it was a joy to see so much brilliant work being told with cultural insight in our indigenous languages.”

“It was fantastic to see an increase in entries in the indigenous language publishing categories, as well as exceptional growth in the student category,” said Eben Keun, Pendorings general manager.

Winners of the 25th Pendorings Awards will this year be announced digitally in a livestream on 13 November from 3pm on Pendorings social media channels.

“We are also hosting our first Pendorings Business Seminar on the 17 November in partnership with Fin24, PanSALB and the Indigenous Language Action Forum,” adds Keun. “It promises to be a good one as we are engaging directly with business leaders who give briefs to agencies, with interesting topics such as what is the cost of not doing more indigenous language work.”
